IANA 2009

The Transportation and Logistics Club sponsored seven people to go to the 2009 IANA Conference in Anaheim, California in November of 2009. Andrew Bach, Nicole Severson, Brad Peot, Kevin Van Ert, Norbert Pattermann, Lindsey Kerschen, and Leonardo Guerson all attended the trip. Here we all went on facility tours, attended information sessions, and networked with hundreds of people. We also got to attend a private session with the Chinese Delegates. These are some of their stories.

Ship being loaded while on tour

The IANA Conference was very worthwhile and an educational experience for me. I attended different presentations where I learned about education in the Supply Chain and Logistics area and how the United States intermodal services differ from European intermodal services. The tour of the Port of Los Angeles was very educational and gave me insight as to how critical this port is to international trade. I was also able to network with many different employers. — Lindsey Kerschen

The biggest reason for going on this trip was networking. The trip gave me good insight on the changing world of transportation and how our generation needs to get involved. The tour of the port showed me how the things we learned in class relate to real life. — Norbert Pattermann

The Transportation and Logistics Club would like to invite you to the next Institute of Supply Management, also called the Lake Superior Chapter of the NAPM, meeting on Thursday Night on February 18th. Our club will be hosting and speaking at this event, which will be in the new Student Union. Come to the club meeting this Thursday to sign up.

TRB 2010

When I was selected to represent the University at the Transportation Research Board 2010 annual conference in Washington D.C. this January, I was very excited and honored. I, Andrew Bach, and Kevin Van Ert were the two students selected to go to Washington this year. It was a great experience for the both of us. For me, it was more than an opportunity to meet and network with industry and government professionals, it was also a chance to see the capital.

Andy and Kevin Pose While at Wisconsin Transportation Ceremony

While there I went to several sessions, including the opening ceremony, sessions on Positive Train Control in the railroad industry, a committee meeting on regional and local rail transportation issues, and several other networking sessions. Both Kevin and I also met up with Dr. Stewart at a dinner ceremony hosted by the Wisconsin Transportation Association. It was great to meet with other Wisconsin transportation and university officials, have some great refreshments, and even watch the Packer game. Too bad they lost though.

It was very rewarding to be able to attend the conference, but it was even better to be able to tour the capital city. Here we toured the capital, all the monuments, the Smithsonian, and even got to see the Whitehouse. All in all this was great trip and great opportunity.
