Let's talk Finance

 Erlanson Hall is home to the business department with modern multi-media classrooms and computer labs.

- Faculty members have real-world experience in all areas of finance: accounting, finance, banking, investments and personal financial planning.
- Students benefit from small classes and individual attention from professors.
- The Finance program is a solid mix of accounting, marketing, management and economics as well as finance. Finance students also take courses in areas such as managerial finance, taxation, insurance and investments.
- The Superior-Duluth metro area offers many internships at banks, credit unions, financial services companies, and government agencies. Faculty members work with students to find internship opportunities.
- In a recent survey the National Association of Colleges and Employers (NACE) listed finance as the degree most sought by employers.
- Students have the opportunity to be involved in research presented semiannually at the Regional Economic Indicator Forum.
- Students can become a member of the Financial Management Association (FMA), an international organization of professionals that provide students access to a wealth of career, professional development and educational resources.

 FMA members have the opportunity to attend the national conference held each year in New York or Chicago and may be inducted into the FMA National Honor Society for exceptional academic achievement.
