

Anita Hecht, LCSW
Director, Life History Services, LLC
servicing North America, Latin America & Europe since 1996

Since 1995, Anita Hecht has produced more than 400 oral history projects for individuals, families, businesses, and organizations, in video, audio and print formats. She holds degrees in history and clinical social work, is a licensed psychotherapist, and began her personal history business, Life History Services, in Madison, Wisconsin in 1997. She first began recording oral histories with Steven Spielberg's Visual History Foundation of the Holocaust. Her work has been archived at Yale University, The Wisconsin Historical Society, Yad Vashem, the Spielberg Foundation, and a variety of other public and private institutions around the country. In addition to her work as an interviewer, producer, and public speaker, she works as a teacher and consultant for do-it-yourselfers and helps organizations plan and produce their own projects and archives. Anita is fluent in English, Spanish and German and is a great fan of yoga, international travel and her four year old daughter.
