has been a counselor, coach, and marriage and family therapist for the past 30 years. In 1999, she decided to combine her love of people, history, and interviewing into a new career as a personal historian and filmmaker, founding Verissima Productions with her partner, Rob Cooper. Today, Pam works internationally making legacy videos for individuals, families, and institutions while maintaining a part time therapy practice focusing primarily on working with couples. She also serves as a docent for Boston by Foot, an all volunteer group which gives architectural and historical tours of Boston and surrounding areas.
