

Regional Economics Faculty Research Staff

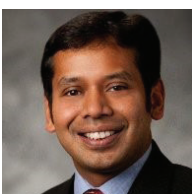

Monica Haynes is the Director of the Bureau of Business and Economic Research (BBER) at UMD. Recent research topics include energy consumption in rental housing, the economic impacts of the Canadian - Arrowhead trade relationship, and renewable energy options for Northeastern Minnesota. She has a Master of Science in Applied Economics from the College of Agriculture, Food and Environmental Sciences, at the University of Minnesota Twin Cities and a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science and Statistics from the University of Minnesota Morris.

Robert Hoffman, Ph.D. is an Assistant Professor of Economics at the School of Business and Technology at the College of St. Scholastica. Dr. Hoffman teaches courses in finance, managerial economics, microeconomics, game theory, and law and economics. He holds a Ph.D. in Economics from Boston College, where his thesis was on The Stability of the Unit Banking System.

Rubana Mahjabeen, Ph.D. is an Assistant Professor of Economics in the UW-Superior Department of Business and Economics with teaching and research interests that include: poverty, microfinance, economic development and growth, and international economics. She has taught at the University of Kansas and Truman State University prior to her current position at UW-Superior. She holds a Ph.D. in Economics from the University of Kansas, a Master's degree in Economics from Texas A&M University, and a Bachelor's degree in Economics from Dhaka University in Bangladesh.

Sakib Mahmud, Ph.D. is an Assistant Professor in Sustainable Management and Economics at the Department of Business and Economics at the University of Wisconsin-Superior. Dr. Mahmud is also affiliated with the Sustainable Management program offered in collaboration between four (4) University of Wisconsin campuses and the University of Wisconsin-Extension's Division of Continuing Education, Outreach, and E-learning, at Madison, Wisconsin. He received his doctoral degree in economics from the University of Wyoming. He completed his degree in M.A. in Economics from the University of British Columbia in Canada. Dr. Mahmud's research interests include: applied microeconomics, environmental and resource economics, sustainable management, development economics, and behavioral economics.

National Bank of Commerce

Member FDIC

