HEALTH AND WELLNESS ONLINE

Designed for busy adults, the UW-Superior online Health and Wellness Management program prepares you for a career developing and managing wellness programs in a variety of settings, public and private, from health care systems and insurance companies to educational institutions, manufacturers, service and retail industries, community agencies and more.

MANAGEMENT CONCENTRATION HIGHLIGHTS

This degree is offered entirely online and our courses are designed with you in mind:

- Online learning tools are built in to help you along the way, so no matter where you’re at, you’re getting assistance.
- The program is supported by well-qualified instructors who have real-world business experience.
- You get to progress and interact with your classmates online to connect and share the learning experience.
- Courses are offered in accelerated eight-week modules to allow for more flexible scheduling and focus on each subject.
- Set a study schedule that works with your busy lifestyle, so you can learn at your own pace.

Our program allows you to make your work experience count. By demonstrating your knowledge and skill, you can earn credit toward your degree. Credit for prior learning also allows you to complete your degree even faster with additional benefits:

- UW-Superior’s programs are accredited by the Higher Learning Commission, so you are attaining a quality education.
- You receive a great value in a flexible online program as tuition and fees are not only flexible but affordable.
- Financial aid through UW-Superior may be available to you to cover costs of your degree.

Rising health care costs, the effects of health care reform, and concerns about employee health and productivity are just a few reasons why more and more organizations are looking to implement workplace wellness programs.

Now, you can learn to design, develop, implement and manage health and wellness initiatives that are good for people and good for business with the online Health and Wellness Management program. Expert faculty and flexible online courses are just two advantages of the bachelor’s and master’s degree programs.

CAREER OUTLOOK

A degree in Health and Wellness Management can be the credential you need to start or advance your career in the health promotion field. Those in this career field start with a salary of over $55,000 a year. The employment outlook for health and wellness professionals with the required knowledge and skills is positive. A November 19, 2014, article from BenefitsPro states that nearly 36 percent of employers expected to add wellness programs in 2015.