Study Away

Spend some time studying abroad and open a window to the world! You’ll return home a changed person able to view the world through new lenses! UW-Superior offers numerous opportunities for students to study in other countries while receiving course credit at the University.

Scotland
Each year students from UW-Superior join students from other University of Wisconsin campuses to live and study for a semester or a summer session at Dalkeith Palace near Edinburgh, the ancient capital city of Scotland. All courses count toward a student’s degree at UW-Superior and include British history and a selection of other general education and professional courses.

Courses are taught by Wisconsin and Scottish professors. Unpaid three-credit internships can also be arranged. Financial aid can be used to cover the cost, which includes books, tuition, and room and board.

South Korea
Students in the Global Village Program at Yonsei University, which is located in Wonju, Korea, live with Korean roommates while taking courses of their choice including Korean conversation and culture. All activities in the GV Program are conducted in English and no prior knowledge of Korean language is necessary. International students will come to understand Korean lifestyle and culture as well as make lifelong friends with Korean students.

At the same time Korean students will experience Western culture as they daily interact closely with exchange students. Students applying for this program must have completed at least three credits in East Asian studies at UW-Superior.

Approximately $3,000 in financial assistance is provided to American students participating in the GV program and dormitory fees are waived for them.

Germany
UW-Superior offers a German Study Abroad course for credit. Students gain first-hand experience with German language, literature and culture during a semester at Carl von Ossietzky University in Oldenburg, Germany or at member institutions within the state of Hessen, Wisconsin’s sister state. The main objective is to offer students the opportunity to improve their command of German through direct contact with German people and culture. The UW-Superior Foundation offers a scholarship for this program.

Costa Rica
UW-Superior partners with CIME, in San Jose, Costa Rica, to offer an immersion experience including a home-stay with Costa Rican families, facilitating both language learning and active participation in the culture and society of Costa Rica.

UW-Superior Spanish minors have the option of completing an individualized major by including a special study abroad component. A series of 300-level courses is offered each March-May. Spanish minors may choose to study for one, two or all three months. The number of 300-level Spanish credits a student normally receives through CIME varies between 7 and 19. Prior approval is required by the Department of Language and Literature. CIME offers Spanish courses at all levels of proficiency. Many Social Work majors choose to complete their required internship in Costa Rica, as well!
